PILE DRIVING.

How It is Being Done on the City Wharf.

Deviations From the Contract Requirements.

The City and the Contractors Save, but Will the Work Be as Good?

The contract for driving the piling for the new city wharf at the foot of Franklin and Webster streets was awarded to B. McMahon & Sons, that firm being the lowest bidder. The contract provides that the work shall be done according to plans and specifications prepared by W. F. Boardman, and under the supervision of the City Engineer. For the faithful performance of the contract McMahon & Son filed a bond with the City Clerk for $10,000, which is endorsed by C. S. Holmes and W. J. Adams, well known San Francisco lumber dealers, as sureties. The specifications under which the contract was awarded provide that the piles to be used in the structure shall be as follows: 352 Stanford piles, twenty-five feet in length, twelve feet thickness at butt; 138 Stanford piles, thirty feet in length, twelve feet thickness at butt; sixty-two brace piles, thirty feet in length, twelve feet thickness at butt; 143 fender piles, thirty feet in length, twelve feet thickness at butt; sixteen cluster piles, forty feet in length, sixteen feet thickness at butt. Making a total of 20,450 lineal feet.

The price for the pile work is the uniform one of 16 cents per lineal foot, the measurements of the piles as driven being of course the basis of the contract, the contractor getting the benefit of the butt. Under the provisions of this contract the total value of the pile work, if faithfully executed, will amount to $3268 80. The contractor receives $1 95 per pile for every pile driven, whether it be deep or shallow. Accompanying the specifications are plans prepared by Mr. Boardman, showing the lines of mud and hard pan and the depth the piles are driven into each.

The pile work has been carried on by the contractors for several weeks past, the pile driver being in operation whenever the tide permits. The work is being conducted under the supervision of the City Engineer.

For some time past there have been complaints that the contractor were not carrying out the work in good faith. These complaints were traceable in every case to rival wharf builders who had been underbid by the contractors, and it was therefore reasonable to suppose that the complaints were more or less caused by jealousy. As the work has progressed these complaints have multiplied. The maxim that there is always fire where there is smoke applies possibly to this case. A glance at some of the piles would suggest that the contractors have departed from the standard provided for in the specifications so far as the same relates to the diameter of the piles driven, and that a large percentage of them are under twelve inches in diameter. The City Engineer says that there is only one pile below the standard diameter of twelve inches at the butt, and that is due to the splitting off of a sliver from one side of it. He says that the slender appearance of the smaller piles is due to an optical delusion. There are so many large piles mixed in the row—piles that are greatly in excess of the measurement required at the butt end—that those which approach the twelve inch limit appear to be below it, although in reality, in every case excepting that already mentioned, they are in excess of it.

Assuming that what Mr. Morgan, the City Engineer, reports in this respect is absolutely true, and there is no reason to doubt that gentleman's statement, for it would be so easy a matter to prove the violation of the contract in this respect, if it were attempted, that few contractors, if any, would venture to do it, no matter how dishonestly inclined, if there is therefore any departure from the plans and specifications, it must be looked for elsewhere. The plans prepared by Boardman show sections of the ground on which the new wharf will stand with the lines of mud and hard pan defined. These lines were established from soundings and borings made at stated points along and across the area covered, and represent, says Mr. Morgan, a general average of the nature of the stratification. The lines are not strictly correct, he adds, for there are bumps in the hard pan which are not shown in the drawings, and there is a more abrupt slope or shelving of the hard pan inshore than is laid down in the plans. But the drawings show that the piles in the various sections shall be stated lengths. The inshore or end wharves are required to be constructed, according to these drawings, with piling penetrating the hard pan, say ten feet, the length of the piles resting in place being twenty feet. It is provided in the specifications that the piles drawn from the old wharf fit for the purpose, if any there be shall be used for this inshore work. If there are none suitable for that purpose, then new piles shall be driven at the regular rate of 16 cents per lineal foot. As a matter of fact all the old piles have been condemned as unfit for use, and new piles have been employed for the work. The contractor receives $1 95, according to the terms of his contract for every pile he drives, whether he drives it one foot or thirteen feet, the latter figure being the greatest depth required, and in no case is it less than ten feet in the hard pan. If the contractor, therefore, drives a pile into the hard pan three feet where the plans on which his contract is based and on which he presumably framed his bid requires him to drive it ten feet he saves over a third of the cost of driving which is all for his benefit while the city profits by it to the extent of the number of lineal feet of pile saved. Thus: the row of piles next inshore are according to the plans to be twenty feet in length in place. The contractor, with the consent of the City Engineer, has made these twelve feet in place, two feet additional buttage being allowed him, which makes the city indebted to him for fourteen lineal feet of pile at 16 cents per foot, making the cost of the pile $2 24 against $3 20 for a twenty foot pile, or a saving to the city of 96 cents on each pile. But owing to the fact that the pile has been driven only one third the depth it ought to have been driven into the ground, the contractor makes a saving also of $1 30, as he receives from the city $1 95 for what has presumably, on the basis of his contract, cost him only 65 cents to accomplish. This is where the rub comes in, favoring the contractor under the guise of favoring the city. In response to the question: Has any deviation been made from these plans which will involve a greater expense on the contractor? Mr. Morgan frankly replies "No." And in response to the further question: Has any deviation been made in the plans from which he will no profit? Mr. Morgan quite as frankly says "No."

Where a pile ought to be 25 feet the longest one is 23 feet, and piles that ought to be thirty feet in length in place, the longest is actually only twenty-six feet. Piles on the outside of the wharf, fronting on the slips, that the drawings require to penetrate the hard pan thirteen feet, are from five feet to nine feet in the hard pan, and reach only three feet below the channel that is to be dredged in the slips, instead of eight feet, as required by drawings and specifications.

Mr. Morgan says that in experience it has been discovered that these departures from the specifications will do—that it is unnecessary to go lower. In some cases the driving of piles was stopped far short of the required depth because their ends broomed so that they simply bounced under the blow of the hammer instead of penetrating the ground, and the head of the pile was in danger of being shattered. If these discoveries had been made before the specifications were made and the contract awarded there would have been no reason to find fault concerning the way the contract is being executed, for certainly some provision would have been made for these alleged contingencies whereby the city would have got the benefit of the reduced depth of driving the pile, and not the contractor. As the contract reads now, the city will derive no benefit from it excepting what is known as "footage," and for that it may get its full share, but the saving in cost of driving all goes to the contractors, although they might be required to go the depth shown in the plans no matter if they did lose by the operation. And in the case of piles that broom or split or shatter, the City Engineer has the right to order them out.

To illustrate the manner in which contractors will profit by the manner in which the work is being done, it may be stated that on the inshore row of the end wharves there are thirty-five piles that ought to be twenty feet in place, and which will be twelve feet in fact; thirty-five that will be sixteen feet, and seventy that will be eighteen feet instead of twenty-five feet. On the driving of these 140 piles, assuming the saving of the cost of driving will average one third the contract prices, the contractors will make $182, and on the entire new work provided for in the contract, namely 731 piles, $950 20, making a net saving to them of $1132 20, every cent of which ought really to go to the City Treasury.

There are several rafts of logs moored in the vicinity of the new wharf which are under the required dimensions. These Mr. Morgan says are condemned logs, and will not be used in the structure.

The police station was full of city officers the other evening, and there were several red hot discussions in progress about the city, the charter, and various city institutions. There was the Mayor and George Carleton and Mr. Swain and Mr. Mackey, who were city officials, and Frank Simpson, who was a contractor, but not a city official. There was one very animated conversation going on. It was between Frank Simpson and Mayor Pierce. Mr. Simpson was laying down the law and the facts in the case, and this is what he said:

"There ain't one third of the piles in the new wharf that are according to the specifications, and not one third of the piles are standard piles. The specifications call for standard piles, twelve, fourteen, and sixteen inches in diameter. That means that a pile shall be twelve inches in diameter in the middle of the pile, and not including the bark. I can say that they have not a fourteen inch pile or a sixteen inch pile down there, and they have very few that are twelve inches through. I went down there yesterday morning and took a rule, and in spite of the fact that I was ordered off, I kept on measuring the piles, and I found very few that were twelve inches through. There is the biggest kind of a job in that wharf, and I don't believe in importing contractors from San Francisco to rob the city. If any one is going to rob it, give the Oakland men a show. There is another thing about that wharf. Those piles are not the length called for in the specifications. They are many feet shorter. The contractors are not driving them to the required depth. They ought to have a man there to look out for the interests of the city, and they ought to have a good man, even if it cost $20 a day, for it would save money in the end. The Council ought never to have allowed that clause in the contract whereby the City Engineer has the appointment of a superintendent of the wharf. It was a mistake. They ought to have had an expert, and he ought to have been appointed by the Mayor or the Council. Tom Morgan don't know anything about that wharf. He drew a set of plans that were not worth the paper they were drawn on, and then the Council had to pay Boardman $160 to draw a set of good plans, and then they got bids. Those plans were good, for they contained the size of every stick of wood in the wharf. I never saw a job carried out in such an open, barefaced manner so near the city."

This and much more did Mr. Simpson say to the Mayor, and after he started home he repeated it to a TRIBUNE reporter, and in a much more emphatic manner.

"It costs 19 cents a foot for standard piles of the length required in the specifications, and they can't be bought for less. The piles that they have down there run nine and ten inches, and could be bought for 10 and 11 cents per foot. Where the specifications call for twenty foot piles they are using fourteen and fifteen foot piles and where the specifications call for thirty foot piles they are using twenty foot piles, and so on all through the various sizes called for. They don't half drive those piles. When you see a pile spring back after the hammer falls you can make up your mind that it is not half driven. It cost $4 to drive a pile, if it is a standard pile and driven to the required length, but it costs about $1 50 to drive the piles as they are being driven now. They should be compelled to draw every one of those piles and substitute good ones. The Mayor and the City Council should go down and look at that job, and if they take those specifications they will have plenty of proof that the contract is not being lived up to."

Another Vag in Quod.

Mike Kavanaugh appeared in the Police Court this morning accused of vagrancy for leading an idle and dissolute life, having been arrested by Officer Greenwald while lounging about West Oakland. When called upon to plead he told the threadbare story of having prospects of work in the future. He will be tried by the court to-morrow

Still Alarm.

About 7:30 P. M. last Saturday a still alarm was given to the Brooklyn Engine Company for a fire in a barn owned by Mrs. J. Watson, at the corner of Fourth avenue and East Eighteenth street. The structure and contents, valued at $500, were entirely destroyed. It is thought that the fire was kindled by tramps.

Burglars in the Eastland Residence.

Burglars entered the residence of Alfred T. Eastland, at 908 Jefferson street, early yesterday morning and secured articles of little value, which were afterwards recovered.

THE EVANGELIST.

Sketch of Mr. Moody's Life and Labor.

Dr. McLean's Review of the Evangelist's Career.

A Man Who Has Addressed More People Than Any Other Who Ever Lived.

Dwight Lyman Moody was born in Northfield, Mass., a town of the Connecticut river valley, situated near the northern boundary of the State, February 5, 1837. Consequently he will be 52 years old to-morrow. He was of Unitarian parentage. He received a very limited common school education, remaining at home and working upon his father's farm until he was 17. At that age he set out alone and a stranger for Boston, where he presently obtained work as a clerk in a shoe store. The boy at once became an attendant at the Mount Vernon Congregational Sunday School. He was placed in a class taught by Edward Kimball, who became quite celebrated a few years since, as an extinguisher of church debts and in that capacity visited Oakland at one time, helping to clear large debts from the First Presbyterian, First Congregational, First Baptist, First Methodist and Hamilton churches. Mr. Moody attributes the conviction in his mind and his subsequent conversion to the faithfulness of his teacher, Kimball. He soon became a member of the church above named. After two years' residence in Boston Mr. Moody came in 1856 to Chicago, where he found employment in the same line of occupation he had followed in Boston.

Here he at once set about Christian work, his first venture in that line being the renting of the pews in the church of which he was a member, and undertaking to keep them filled on Sundays with young men. He also started a Sunday School of the missionary class, and within a year's time gathered into it a membership of over 1000 pupils.

During the civil war Mr. Moody was in the service of the United States Christian Commission, in which employ he began to win his first distinction. Afterward he engaged in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago as a lay missionary. Meantime his mission school had grown into a church, for which a large building was erected, he being its unordained pastor."

This church edifice, together with Mr. Moody's home and furniture, were destroyed in the great fire of 1871, but a new and much larger church has been erected. It is carried on upon an undenominational but distinctly evangelistic basis, and is still familiarly known as "Moody's Church."

Meanwhile, from the years 1865 and 1856 to 1873, Mr. Moody began to acquire a more than local reputation for intense moral earnestness, combined with great skill and power in conducting religious services. The writer of this knew him in the State of Illinois in 1867 to 1872, as an organizer and conductor of State Christian Conventions and the like. As such he manifested a growing power, and exerted a wide-spread influence, long before he had gained a national and international celebrity.

In 1873, accompanied by Mr. Sankey, Mr. Moody visited Europe, and held Evangelistic services throughout England, Scotland, and Ireland, which resulted in great religious awakenings in the principal cities of these countries. They returned to the United States in 1875, and for the next eight years were incessantly employed at the chief centers of population in our own country, meeting with the greatest success wherever they went. In 1883 they again visited Great Britain and France.

For the past fifteen years Mr. Moody's audiences have been limited only by the capacity of the buildings in which they have been held. In many instances these buildings have been tabernacles expressly erected for his use, and containing 5000 to 7000 people. Eight years ago Mr. Moody spent three months in San Francisco, holding a short series of meetings in Oakland; as a result of which the churches have been largely increased. That of Dr. Horton, then under the pastorship of Dr. Sprecher, received over 200 into its membership at one service, and over 300 during the year.

A few years ago Mr. Moody purchased the old farm in Northfield on which he was born and began the erection of a modest home for himself and family and the foundation of large institutions for Christian education. These already include a considerable group of buildings, and have a large attendance of pupils, running up into the hundreds. The schools are somewhat on the industrial plan, and with no fixed charges for tuition. Those who are able to pay are required to do so, while those who are unable and have no friends to pay for them are admitted without cost. The design of the institution is, while affording a substantial intellectual training, to also make prominent the developing of the higher forms of Christian character, and to fit those of the pupils who show promise in that direction for special Christian work, both at home and abroad.

A very important feature in Mr. Moody's Northfield work is his summer School for Bible and Christian study, to which hundreds of the most devout and intelligent minds in our country and from other countries annually resort. Among them are large numbers of college students.

It is claimed for Mr. Moody—not by himself, for he is a man singularly free from advancing any personal claims whatever—but it is claimed for him by those interested in his work, that he has addressed in his lifetime more people, not only than any other individual now living, but more than have been addressed by any other single individual that ever lived. No doubt this claim is entirely well founded.

Compute, for example, the hearing he has had in San Francisco the last four weeks. The Pavilion tabernacle accommodates 5000 people. On Sundays he has occupied it twice each day together with a morning service in some church; 11,000 people, at least, have heard him every Sunday. On Mondays one service of 5000 attendants; on the other days of the week, except Saturday, an afternoon church audience of 1500 and an evening one of 5000.

Reckon these figures for four weeks. The aggregate is no less than 168,000 attendances at his meetings during the thirty days.

This is a low estimate. Now it's perfectly within bounds to calculate that out of this number of attendances at least one in four was by different persons. This makes it more than probable that not less than 42,000 different persons listened to Mr. Moody during his late work in San Francisco, in a single month. In most places it is true his audiences were smaller than this; but, on the other hand, he stays in such places for a much shorter time, making up in increased number of audiences the lack in size of them, giving a monthly total of hearers quite as large generally as he had here. Doubtless a full third of a million different persons listen annually to Mr. Moody's words in the eight or nine months during which he is at work. In some years the number is much larger than this; as in London, where a series of tabernacles were prepared, and the evangelist moved without loss of time from one vast audience of thousands to a fresh one of equal size, and that through a period of months. Of Mr. Moody's style of speech, and of the matter of his speaking, it is needless to make any mention here. The impression made by him is everywhere deep and lasting. His converts are among the foremost persons in our land in point of intelligence, moral power, and serviceableness to God and humanity.

UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP.

The "Morning Times" Passes Into the Hands of Senator Moffitt.

The ownership of the Morning Times has again changed, the late owners, William J. Dingee, W. J. Henshaw, Victor H. Metcalf, George L. Metcalf, and Henry P. Squire having sold the same to Senator Frank J. Moffitt. The announcement of the transfer was made by the Times this morning. In making the announcement, what will be the future policy of the paper is not stated. The subject is thus disposed of: "As to this matter we will merely say at this time that we shall have enough to say at the proper time—which shall not be far distant."

Necrology.

Morgan S. Hurd died yesterday morning at his residence, 53? Sycamore street, from paralysis of the bowels. He was a native of New York about 70 years of age, and resided in Oakland 19 years, during which time he has been in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company as claim agent. Previous to that time he had been engaged in quartz mining on the Carson river, in Nevada. The dead man leaves a widow, two sons, George and Frank and two daughters, Mrs. C. Holbrook and Mrs. S. Elmore. The body will be embalmed to await the arrival of the latter daughter from Astoria.

Sophia Dorn Crerer, a recent arrival in this city, died of consumption this morning at the Eureka Hotel. She was a native of Switzerland and 42 years old.

P. O. Jarvis died Saturday night in this city. He was a printer and will be buried to-morrow in San Francisco by the Typographical Union.

An Ex-Convict in the Toils.

John Kelley, who is said to be an ex-convict, and A. Simpson, an express wagon driver, were arrested early yesterday morning at Seventh and Washington streets, charged with fighting. Kelley was also booked at the police office for using vulgar language. In the Police Court this morning Kelley pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay $40 or go to jail for 20 days, while Simpson's bail was reduced to $10, which he forfeited to the city. The case of vulgar language against Kelley will be tried to-morrow morning.

Burning of a Barn.

Shortly after 6 o'clock last Saturday night a hay barn and contents, consisting of several tons of hay, owned by I. N. Sloanmaker, was destroyed by fire. The barn was owned by Dr. McKay, who resides in San Francisco. Mr. Sloanmaker's loss is about $300, which is partially covered by an $800 insurance. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin. The barn was a relic of former days, having been built by William Watts in 1863.

No Reflections Intended.

Any implied reflections upon the fair reputation of the young lady attendant in Gagne's photographic gallery which might be contained in the statement made by Miss Alice D. Proper, published on Saturday, would evidently be quite unwarranted. Mr. Gagne's partner in the gallery says that she is a young lady of irreproachable character.

Dredging the Estuary.

A dredger was put to work on Wednesday last, between the training walls in the channel, near the freight wharf of the narrow gauge railroad company. It is the old Von Schmidt machine and forces the mud through pipes outside the south training wall. The dredger will gradually work its way up into the Brooklyn basin.

Robbed by Footpads.

While M. J. Cummings, painter residing at the corner of Twenty-second street and San Pablo avenue, was returning homeward last night shortly after 9 o'clock he was set upon by a trio of footpads near the cable railroad engine house, and robbed of a gold watch and chain valued at about $100.

Indigents Applying to the Supervisors for Relief.

Proceedings of the Board at Its Regular Session This Morning.

There were not so many indigents by half at the meeting of the Board of Supervisors this morning as last week. Most of those dropped at the beginning of the year have reapplied, and those who applied this morning were mostly new applicants. There were the same old stories of sickness, death, and desolation. The most were Portuguese, and fully one half of the indigents that are being assisted by the county are of this nationality. They are of all ages, from small children to old men. Even young girls in the full bloom of a tropical youth, with flashing black eyes that cast soft glances at the handsome clerk as he gracefully swore them and then turned them over to the mercies of the chairman. Chairman Morgan always questioned these very little and then remarked, "Gentlemen, this is in my district. What will you do with it?" It was always referred to him with power to act, though Mr. Pelouze thinks that some of these were in his district.

It took the board an hour and a half this morning to dispose of the reading of the minutes and the indigents, both of which, if it were not for the musical voice of the clerk as he rolls off the minutes, would be equally tiresome. Livina Bess was an old colored woman who lived in Mr. Morgan's district. Mr. Morgan, without regarding that natural modesty of women in regard to their age, announced that she was over 80 years of age. This having once been told, Mrs. Bess said that if she lived to see April 11th she would be 81, and the case was given to Mr. Morgan.

Edward Gustafson, an inmate of the County Infirmary, asked that the Board grant him $20, as he felt that he had so far recovered from his attack of paralysis as to be able to do some small peddling, and he wanted $20 to start himself in business. The matter was referred to the Hospital Committee.

Reports of the following road overseers were received: Erasmus Johnson of Fruit Vale, and William Farwell of Stony Brook.

Superintendent Thomas of the County Infirmary reported for January that at the first of the year 181 patients were on hand. During the month 21 were received, 20 discharged, 2 died, leaving 180 in the Infirmary. Cash on hand January 1, 1889, $167 90; received, $79; total, $218 90; disbursed, $58 55; balance, $197 95. Filed.

County Physician H. T. Legler reported twenty-six patients received at the Receiving Hospital during the month, twenty-two discharged, four sent to County Infirmary and one died. Nine prisoners in County Jail treated and six indigent sick treated. Filed.

Coroner Henry Evers reported ten cases during the first month of his administration. Filed.

County Treasurer Huff reported $1024 66 in the Road and Bridge fund received from the apportionment of the railroad taxes, the money only to go to the Road District through which the railroads run.

The Treasurer was instructed to receive and apportion the money.

This he did as follows: General Road fund, $738 70; Alamont, $565 47; Alvarado, $276 97; Bay, $74 55; Brooklyn, $225 03; Fruit Vale, $163 69; Mt. Eden, $457 26; Murray, $398 01; Newark, $110 42; Niles, $517 28; Ocean View, $42 06; Pleasanton, $277 62; San Lorenzo, $395 66; Vallecitos, $219 35; Washington, $498 36.

County Auditor Boardman made his quarterly report to the board, showing the funds and their condition, etc. It was filed.

On January 7th ex-Coroner Frank presented a bill for $109 for mileage. It was referred to the District Attorney. District Attorney Reed presented his opinion in regard to the validity of the bill. He held that all items of the bill which occurred more than one year before the filing of the bill were void. This takes $2 off the bill. The District Attorney then held that the Coroner was entitled to 25 cents per mile for all space traveled in going to an inquest, for the law provides that an inquest must be held on the place where the death occurred. He further advised that where several deaths occurred in one accident the fees of the Coroner for an inquiry into the cause of death of each person would be a separate charge against the county only when a separate inquest was held.

Frank Elliott was appointed watchman in the County Treasurer's office vice Henry Hauschildt.

The county accepted and declared a public road a road running through the property of T. A. Spaulding in Pleasanton Road District.

The County Treasurer was ordered to transfer $4 32 from the General Road fund to the Piedmont Road fund.

The County Treasurer was also ordered to transfer $159 66 from the Squirrel Abatement fund to the County General fund, and $10 90 from the Canal fund to the General fund.

An ordinance fixing the time and rate of paying the road poll tax for 1889 was passed. The ages were fixed at from 21 to 55 years, and the time at which it will be payable was fixed at from March 15th to the first Monday in July. After that it will become $3.

A recess was then taken until 1 P. M.

The members of the Schutzen Club asked for a franchise to permit them to shoot on their own reservation and to prevent their being driven off as a nuisance, as they had been done before. The request was referred to the Judiciary Committee, as there was some doubt as to the board's power.

Sheriff Hale reported twenty prisoners awaiting trial and 138 serving time.

The usual bills were read and the board adjourned.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS.

Two Men Under Arrest Accused of Numerous Burglaries.

The patrol wagon returned from West Oakland at a late hour this afternoon with two suspicious looking individuals, whose names have been placed upon the small book. They are known to be two of the burglars who have been operating in Oakland so extensively of late. They will probably be charged with the numerous burglaries that have occurred, as the police have got conclusive evidence against them. They are also believed to be the footpads who have stood up so many citizens of late, and an attempt will be made to identify them as such to-morrow.

UNHAPPY COUPLES

Asking the Superior Court to Untie the Nuptial Knot.

Catherine Palmer has given notice that on February 11th she will move the Superior Court to compel her husband to pay her $100 counsel fees and $40 a month alimony, pending the hearing of the divorce proceedings instituted against her by her husband, Joseph Palmer. The wife asserts that she has a good defense to the action, and alleges that she is without means to properly present it to the court. In her affidavit she charges that her husband is a skilled mechanic and capable of earning $4 50 a day, and in addition to this he receives the rent of some property which he holds in his name.

Agnes Coates is seeking a legal separation from William A. Coates on the ground of cruelty. The couple were married about a year ago in Sacramento. The wife asserts that her husband has treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner. She simply asks for a divorce and nothing more.

ALMOST TOGETHER.

A Physician Dies While in Attendance at a Patient's Bedside.

Very Rev. Patrick Healy, pastor of the Church of the Holy Name of Jesus of Chicopee, and Vicar General of the Springfield diocese, was stricken with apoplexy yesterday at the parochial residence. He breakfasted with his assistant, Father McKeel nie, and met Fathers Beaven and Dower of Holyoke in his usual health and spirits that morning. His physicians, Drs. Mellen and Parker, and Bishop O'Reilly of this city, were summoned, and the case was deemed so serious that Dr. William G. Beck of Chicopee, the leading surgeon of western Massachusetts, was called for consultation. Meanwhile the last rite of the church were administered to Father Healey. Dr. Breck arrived at about 4 o'clock, and, after examining the patient, retired to an adjoining room with the other doctors and the Bishop.

"He's got to die," said Dr. Breck, with his customary bluffness and decision.

A moment afterward, turning to Bishop O'Reilly, he remarked at the closeness of the room and called for a glass of water. Then he brought his hand to his chest and coughed slightly, and blood at once came from his mouth.

"Bleed me, doctor," he said quickly to Dr. Mellen, and his friend at once complied. He saw the blood was very dark and said calmly, "I'm gone; that looks like tar."

The doctors did all that could be done, but in twenty minutes the distinguished physician was dead. In little more than an hour afterward Father Healy expired. Bishop O'Reilly, who is not in robust health, is completely prostrated by the two shocking events occurring beneath his eyes and removing two warm friends, one a trusted and most able coadjutor.

Dr. Breck was a native of Franklin county, Vt., and a fine specimen of Dutch-American stock. He was 75 years of age.

An Illustration.

The rose that in some winter room
So frailly grows, so palely blows,
Knows in its heart a brighter bloom,
And longs to be a summer rose—
In sun and shower, a summer rose

The song each silent heart within
That weakly tries, that meekly dies
For utterances that it may not win,
From poet lips that would scale the skies:
A poet's song would scale the skies.

The love that lurks in every breast
So kind a thing, so blind a thing,
If with a smile or word caressed,
Would wake and rise and be a King—
Of life and death the Lord and King!

WOMEN NOT COWARDS.

Men Who Are Afraid to Ascend the Washington Monument.

Washington Star.

"Do the passengers who ride up with you ever become frightened?" asked a Star reporter of the elevator conductor at the Washington Monument the other day.

"Some do and some do not," was the reply, as the cable puller turned to explain to a lady in the car that the trip upward occupied about nine minutes. "I'll tell you," he explained, turning back to the reporter. "The first lady who became frightened in the monument came the other day. She was the first and only one. We had hardly started from the floor when she began to get nervous, and kept getting more and more so, and finally asked me to let her off. Of course I could not go back, so I kept on to the first landing, two or three levels higher, and there I opened the door and led her out to the platform. She was very nervous. I did not want to leave her there alone, so I called to a nice looking young man who was walking down and asked him if he would not stay with her until I could get to the top and send a watchman down to help her. He said he would and I went on. When the watchman went down he could not find them: she had walked back with the young man."

Here the conductor had to interrupt himself to reassure a man huddled away back in the corner of the car that the same elevator had carried tons and tons of stone to the top of the monument, and had been pronounced perfectly safe by all the authorities. Then he resumed, lowering his voice somewhat as he said:

"On the other hand I have had to stop at least twenty times for the benefit of men who would not go any higher. Why, I have seen great, big, strong men, who looked as though they weren't afraid of anything, get to trembling, and finally ask me to let them get off and walk. Particularly fat men, too," with a reminiscent chuckle. "Fat men are afraid of their weight, particularly if they are with a large crowd. I can't explain why this should be," he concluded, just as the car emerged from the semi darkness of the shaft into the whiter, brighter light of the top landing, "but I must say that I've come to the conclusion the women are not the cowards, after all; it's the men. If the women are they don't show it here.

A San Diego Mine.

San Diego Union.

In its account of another "new gold find" the candid Sun proceeds to say: "A tunnel was found running into the hill, apparently excavated many years ago, which was found full of wildcats." A vein of wildcats, the first thing! This is something new in mining, as the wildcats are usually withheld until all the stock is sold.

THE TERRYS.

The Writ of Habeas Corpus Invoked.

Sheriff Hale Refuses to Obey the Mandate.

The Conflict Between the State and Federal Courts Coming to a Focus.

Late Saturday afternoon a writ of habeas corpus was served on Sheriff Hale, requiring him to produce the person of David S. Terry in the Supreme Court this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Terry continues to reiterate his charges against Sheriff Hale. This morning a reporter asked Mr. Hale if he desired to make any reply to the charges made by Mr. Terry under his own signature. The Sheriff replied that he did not desire to get into any newspaper controversy. He is satisfied with the manner in which the affairs of the County Jail are conducted, and has no fault to find with either Jailers Woolsey or Morrison. As soon as Terry made the charges against Mr. Hale the latter went before the Finance Committee of the Board of Supervisors who were in session Saturday afternoon, and informed them of the nature of the charges. He asked them to make an investigation of the affairs of the jail and stated to them that he is anxious that the charges should be looked into. This morning he again informed the Supervisors of Terry's charges and stated that he did not want to get into a newspaper controversy with Terry or anyone else, but feeling confident that the affairs of his office had been properly conducted he is not afraid to have an investigation but on the contrary, he courts such an action on the part of the Board of Supervisors, who are the persons to look into such matters and determine the truth or falsity of Terry's charges. It is for these reasons that Mr. Hale declines to reply to Terry's accusations which have only been made in the newspapers and have not been made to the proper authorities under oath. However, in view of the fact that the charges of mismanagement have been made so public, it is probable that a committee of the Board of Supervisors will be appointed to look into the manner of conducting the affairs of the County Jail.

Sheriff Hale refused to take Terry before the Supreme Court this afternoon. He went to San Francisco with his attorney and District Attorney Reed and made his return to the court on the writ. The Sheriff holds that Terry is now under the jurisdiction of the United States Circuit Court and therefore, the Supreme Court of this State has no right to interfere. The Sheriff holds that if he should bring Terry into court he would be under the jurisdiction of the State Court. So for that reason he left him safely locked up in jail. The question is one of grave importance.

IN THE SUPREME COURT.

Argument on Sheriff Hale's Return to the Writ.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 4.—The argument in the Terry case is now in progress before the Supreme Court sitting in bank.

When the court convened Sheriff Hale, who is present, made his return on the writ, reciting that the State Court has no jurisdiction in Terry's case, and that he is holding the prisoner by virtue of an order of the United States Circuit Court.

J. C. Martin and General Carey made the argument in behalf of Sheriff Hale. Mr. Martin contended that the court could not investigate into the facts of Terry's case, as it has no jurisdiction. He held that the matter must end at the return made by the Sheriff.

J. G. Maguire, on behalf of Terry, opposed this view. He claimed that Terry's time expired at midnight on January 31st, and since that time Terry has been without the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court and is now within the jurisdiction of the State Court.

THE LAST MAN TO CROSS.

A Physician's Story of His Trip Over the Niagara Bridge.

Buffalo Express.

"I had not advanced far beyond the Canadian tower, however, before I realized from the nature of the swaying that something was wrong, but I was exceedingly anxious to reach home and so kept on. As I neared the center the swinging of the bridge from side to side was something terrific, and to add to the horror of the situation there was likewise a heavy motion like the rising and falling of a ship in the waves, as though the cables above were elastic. Sometimes the bridge would seem to tip up, as though one side was raised by the wind, while the other hung from the 'suspenders,' and whenever this occurred I dropped on my hands and knees for fear that I should be thrown over the railing. The rest of the time I clung to the railing as though it were the only straw between me and certain death, and worked my way along a few steps at a time whenever there would come a slight lull in the gale. In several places this railing was bent inward, and I was in constant fear of reaching some break.

"To add to the discomfort and difficulties of the trip, great volumes of spray from the falls, mingled with snow and sleet, were dashed at intervals into my face, blinding me and drenching my clothing. At one point a gust of wind more powerful than the rest seemed to come swelling up from the water, and, getting under my overcoat, literally tore it open. Had I not been holding on to the railing with both hands I believe that garment would have been carried away. Mingled with the whistling of the wind through the wires, when near the center of the bridge, I heard a sound like the flapping of a broken cable against the railing, and I believe that it was here that the bridge first began to give way. When I finally reached the American tower, fully half an hour after I began the trip, I was wet to the skin, almost blinded, and breathless. Nothing would tempt me to go through the same ordeal again."

SUNDAY SPORTS.

A Game of Baseball Across the Bay.

The Knickerbockers and San Franciscos played a match game of baseball at Central Park yesterday afternoon. Geo. Van Haltren was in the points for the Eastern team and did fine work. He succeeded in shutting out the opposing team. Knell pitched for the home nine and did effective work. The first run was scored by the Knicks in the fourth inning, and they added another in the eighth. Denny and Charley Van Haltren were the two players who were fortunate enough to get around the four bases. The San Franciscos played a very even game, and made their opponents play up to the handle during the entire contest. The official score is as follows:

COCK FIGHTING ON SUNDAY.

There was a cocking main about a mile from Berkeley yesterday afternoon. It was Oakland vs. San Francisco. At the appointed hour about 500 sports assembled at the ring side. Considerable betting was done, and as a result many of the sports mourned the loss of eagles.

The fowls were matched three on each side, for $100 each, or $600 for the main. Oakland won the main straight, and a more demoralized and down-hearted couple of hundred chicken admirers never crossed the bay than those who returned on the 6 o'clock train last night.

CALIFORNIA SCHUETZEN CLUB

A Shooting Range Leased for Fifty Years at Fruit Vale.

The California Schuetzen Club, which formerly had its range in Alameda and now practices at Harbor View, has taken steps toward securing a new and permanent shooting range at Fruit Vale. Yesterday afternoon forty-five of the 200 members of the club went to inspect the grounds, which are situated in the foothills, four miles from Fruit Vale. The tract embraces fifty-two acres, and will afford a range of from 850 to 1000 yards in length, with the foothills as a natural bulwark.

This week they will apply to the Legislature for a charter granting them a fifty years' permit to shoot over these grounds, and then the land now bonded by the club will be bought outright, it is said, for $15,000. The club proposes, if it succeeds in obtaining the wished for charter, to incorporate under the laws of the State, and become a stock company, retaining at least one-third of the stock as club property, and disposing of the balance to its members. The fifty-two acres of land will be laid out in a range which is to have no equal in the United States, and the remainder of the grounds will be devoted to a park. Other shooting clubs, sporting and military will have access to the grounds, but Sunday picnics will be prohibited. The object of the club is to instruct the native Californians and others in the proper use of firearms for all purposes, in target, sporting, and military shooting, thereby assuring to the State in case of need a number of men trained in the use of arms. The club is the only one in the United States which has a cadet corps of shooters, and it numbers in that corps many sharp young shooters. Although at present four lines from Fruit Vale broad gauge station, the Alameda county road will pass within a stone's throw of the range.

GOSPEL OF GRACE.

The Voice of the Pastors of Oakland.

Rev. Mr. Wendte's Views on Evangelist Moody.

The Week's Programme of the Moody Services in This City.

There were but few, very few, of the pastors of the Oakland churches who did not yesterday have something to say of Mr. Moody. Some in an incidental way merely mentioned his name and the work in which he is engaged. Some were content with announcing his advent in Oakland. Some went further and expressed opinions pro and con relevant to his mission and his self.

Mr. Moody is here. This evening at 7:30 o'clock he will begin his course of addresses at the First Congregational Church. To-morrow afternoon at 3:30 he will inaugurate a series of bible readings to be held at the First Presbyterian Church on each afternoon thereafter during his stay. Wednesday evening prayer meeting will be held, as usual, in the several churches. Several ministers have requested their flocks to attend. This will give those who do not go to prayer meetings a chance to hear the great evangelist to a better advantage.

MR. MOODY.

Mr. Wendte Thinks He Has Outlived His Usefulness.

Many years ago in Chicago Mr. Moody preached, and there the Rev. C. W. Wendte came in contact with him. Yesterday afternoon, in the place of the regular bible study that is wont to succeed the morning sermon, the latter gentleman spoke a few words of the great evangelist and his methods. "I remember him quite well," he said, "and my first impressions were by no means favorable ones. There was no doubt in the minds of any but that he was thoroughly in earnest, but he certainly had a very strange way of showing his earnestness. His first sermon—the first I heard, at any rate—one typical of the methods and plans adopted by himself and kind at that time, I can even now recollect. He drew awful pictures of the sufferings of those whose way was not the straight and narrow one, and he dwelt not as much on the beauties of Christ's promises and the advantages of Christian life as on the terrors of God's law. And among other things he drew a word landscape in which a prison was the central figure. Over this prison God was governor and Jesus Christ was turnkey. The inmates were the great mass of the unsaved. They were to make to the turnkey certain promises. By a sort of cringing obedience to his wishes and commands they were to win his good opinion and esteem. Then, like a dutiful guard of the gates of a prison house, he let them out, one by one, and they escaped to heaven.

Since then, however, he has moderated greatly, and he is less repellant and probably quite earnest in his work. Professor George P. Fisher thinks that there is room for revival preachers in the work to be done for the church, and he is disposed to think that Mr. Moody may be useful, though some may occasionally demur at his statements of doctrine, or to some of his precepts concerning the Christian life. Mr. Moody has taught the evangelical denominations to preach a hopeful gospel to throw off what is perfunctory or mechanical in the service of religion, and that the people are still deeply interested in religion. He has also raised the question, "How shall the masses be brought into our churches?" and has shown the desirability and feasibility of Christian union, and has instructed us as to the relation of religion to the reformation of the immoral. Admitting that so many hints have been received by the work of Mr. Moody, we are shown some of the rocks that are laid bare by the rise and fall of these evangelical freshets. In the first place, it would be suicidal to the church to rely as a main dependence for its growth upon revivalists and revivals. "Lethargy follows excitement." After the freshet, Mr. Fisher says, "we have an unpleasant view of rocks and mud flats." Five members a month during a year are better added to the church than sixty during the month of January.

And again, harm is done by everything that tends to vulgarize religion. Everything savory of aught of flippancy or of levity should excite the deepest repugnance. Namby-pamby songs are offensive, and low wit is disgusting to the reverent mind. The machinery of revivals often tends to belittle the importance of religion. In it are many things remindful of the arts and devices of a political campaign.

It is of importance that religious teaching should keep pace with the science and knowledge of the times. Ignorance is the mother of superstition, not of devotion. The human element of the Bible is becoming more and more obvious. I must confess to a feeling of mortification when I listen to the religious teaching which ignores science, and when I hear the authority of Christ staked upon the proposition that the deluge was universal and that Jonah was swallowed by the whale.

And too, the Evangelists' evident effort to popularize religion, while laudable in its intention, is often to the extent of irreverence. Mr. Moody more often speaks of God with the off hand assurance and apparent intimacy of a fellow mortal or of a brother than with the reverence that is due a father and more—a father in heaven. The progress from Judeaism with God at a distance, to the present religion that is of "our father which art in heaven," is a step in the right direction, and it should not be counteracted by the often shocking irreverence of those who seeking to "popularize religion," instead make it a mockery and an illusion.

"The moment you doubt," the revivalist says, "you are lost." A man goes to him and seeks enlightenment. He says there are contradictory passages, and there are precepts and historical happenings that he cannot understand. And the evangelist "oh! pohs! his questions, and says: "Ah! my friend, the pride of intellect will be your downfall. You must not think. You must place yourself in God's hands, and yield yourself a ready sacrifice on the altar." But a religion that is not of the mind and of the intellect is not one that is beneficial, and is not one that will "take" among the enlightened and educated classes of men and women. A new Heaven, spiritually as well as socially, a new religion, mentally as well as physically, are the outcomes of the world's progress. The cold headedness of intellect has uprooted the passing influences of the revival.

LIFE'S HIGHER PURPOSE.

"Some Reasons for Living," by Rev. W. T. Fleener.

Last evening Rev. W. T. Fleener preached, as usual, from the pulpit of the Harrison Street Baptist Church. His subject was, "A Higher Purpose in Life," and the words of his text are found in the sixth verse of the ninth chapter of Acts. They are these: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" "The anxious inquiry of Paul, the scholarly apostle," said Mr. Fleener, "recalls the fact that there are many of us who do not clearly realize our relations to God as we should. One can not follow the bent and trend of his own heart and at the same time feel fully his duty and responsibilities toward God. Nothing will so tell against our happiness as striving against God. Nothing will weigh against our chances of a bright hereafter as will our disobedience of his commands or our disregard of his wishes. Life is an enterprise, a grand one. It was the wish of God that we should make good use of our own lives. Life with its cares and responsibilities calls for all of our energy and interest. We not only disregard, but we disobey God's intended commands when we waste time in frivolous pleasure, or when we refuse to use our heaven born gifts to good and useful purpose. Thousands live as butterflies. No object, no aim, no direct purpose is theirs. They make no attempt to bring out the nobility that is in all humanity, even though in some it lies dormant. The worst form of humanity is seen in those who have wrong motives toward God. How many stop to ask themselves their own purpose in living? How many question whether God has any use for them? Or whether humanity finds in them anything of value?

"It is a solemn and important question.

"The question may arise, How are we to know God's will? First shall we know by following on that we may learn. By evincing a disposition to search and a desire to learn we open the way for divine light. There is not enough of inquiry in life.

"Then we may know God's will by obedience. By following when we are told we shall open up a road and discover new paths, of which we never dreamed.

"And by prayer and fasting shall we discover what he means for us to do. And when we do pray for inspiration, and when we ask the question 'What wilt thou have me to do?' we must mean it all. Paul meant more than the mere words he uttered. He meant, besides, 'Whatever thou askest, that will I do.'

"The reward for our faith and reliance upon God is a sure one. Besides the assurance of happiness hereafter which we are given, and which takes from life much of its dread, we are kept by divine grace out of the pitfalls and dark places that infest the present. What more can we desire?

A Dual Government in West Virginia.

A rather serious state of things exists in West Virginia in relation to the government of the State after March 4th. It is stated on the authority of leading Republicans of the State, men who are in close communication with General Goff, that the unavoidable result of the pending Gubernatorial contest at Charleston will be the existence for a brief period after March 4th of a dual Government and a state of affairs which may require the interference of the Federal Government to settle. The situation is of the gravest character. A few days ago the leading Republican paper in the State the Wheeling Intelligencer, after reviewing the history of the attempt of the Democrats to prevent the delivery to the Legislature of the Kanawha county returns announced that Governor Goff will appeal to the courts, and then went on to say:

"The Constitution requires the Speaker of the House, in the presence of the two houses sitting in joint assembly, to 'open and publish' the vote, after which the person having the highest vote is to be 'declared' elected Governor. The scheme now hatching at Charleston is to refuse to declare the result, on the pretext of Fleming's contest, and thus make it possible for Governor Wilson to hold over after the 4th of March next and keep the seat warm for Fleming until after he shall have been declared, as soon as may be, by a partisan majority, entitled to the place."

The Intelligencer then proceeds to discuss this "revolutionary proceeding," as it calls it, and continues with a lengthy legal argument to show that such an act would be in violation of the letter and spirit of the Constitution, from which it quotes liberally. The significant part of the article, and which is evidently intended to be taken as an announcement of the Republican programme, is as follows:

"General Goff will go before a proper officer and take the oath of office as Governor of this State as certainly as the 4th of March comes around and he is alive. If he is denied entry into the State House and forcibly resisted, he will first call upon the civilian aid of the State and next, as Commander-in-Chief of the militia, he will call on the military. If Governor Wilson resists and also calls out the military to aid him, the Government of the United States will be promptly appealed to, and there is no reasonable doubt that it will promptly respond. There was a bogus claimant of a Governorship once before—one Dorr, in Rhode Island—and he was squelched by the United States Government, just as Wilson will be squelched in this case."

The Democrats have a majority of one in the Legislature, and they are now engaged in an effort to postpone the declaration of the result. On the returns Goff has a plurality, and a declaration to this effect by the Legislature would place Fleming, the Democratic candidate, in the attitude of a contestant. At last week the sessions of the Legislature at Charleston were characterized by the most disorderly scenes occasioned by this endeavor to deprive Goff of what is rightfully his.

A good deal of fun is being made of the specifications issued by the committee of the Lincoln Club of Cincinnati for the uniform to be worn by members on the occasion of the club's appearance at the inauguration in Washington next month. Among these are:

1. An imported all wool Melton overcoat.
2. Solid silver medallion badge, oxydized bust of Lincoln in bas-relief.
3. Imported dogskin gloves, tan color, braided backs; suitable necktie, and an imported stick.

With an imported coat, imported gloves and an imported stick shall the club go forth to give testimony to the benefits of protection to American industry. The snobs will be home made.

Now that Bismarck has backed down and promises to tie up his dogs of war we may allow Company A to proceed with its Washington jaunt without having our feeling of security jeopardied by the absence of our brave defenders, and we hope the boys will enjoy themselves, while we invite the stay at home citizen to contribute liberally of his purse to forward the march.

SIR CHARLES DILKE, speaking of Boulanger, says he is unable to make out whether the "brave General" is a clown, a charlatan or a coming Cæsar.

A coyote is worth nearly as much as a cow in Sonoma county. The Supervisors offer a bounty of $15 a head, and the industry is quite profitable.

EIGHTH STREET BRIDGE.

A Hoodlum Rendezvous That Wants Breaking Up.

That the gang of young hoodlums who infest Eighth street bridge continually are allowed unbridled license in their wrong doing is a disgrace to the city government.

On Sunday afternoon, while driving across the bridge, I witnessed an unprovoked attack by eight or ten of them on one poor weakly Chinaman. That they did not kill him was only because of the timely appearance of more respectable people. As it was, they beat and kicked him unmercifully. This was only a Chinaman, but I am told that their sport extends also to the attacking of single Caucasians, young ladies, and children. They are too cowardly to attack a party of men. I write in the hope that by calling attention to them our city fathers may bestir themselves in the matter, and thank you for providing a medium for doing so. EAST OAKLAND.

PROPOSED CHANGE IN SCHOOL LAW.

A proposed change in the school law was then read, together with the following statement, prepared by Mr. W. A. M. Van Bokkelen, the expert engaged in examining the county books.

"The changes proposed are all in clause 4 of section 1543 of the Political Code, and only refer to the manner of drawing money from the Treasury.

"The present law provides that the 'Orders' of the Boards of District School Trustees shall be filed in the office of the County Superintendent, and that he shall draw a requisition, thus preventing any examination, in the course of current business, of these original papers by the Auditor or Treasurer.

"The amendment proposes that the requisition shall be indorsed upon the 'Order' by the Superintendent, he making a record of the same, while the original 'Order' goes to the Auditor and from him to the Treasurer, thus giving all three an opportunity to examine into the regularity of its issuance, contents, and transfer, if any. The other changes are merely technical, to make the balance of the clause agree with this change. It does not increase the work of any one, but simplifies the whole proceeding.

"The following facts are given in support of the necessity of the change, being memoranda of matters relating to the school fund and its manner of disbursement.

"The entire amount disbursed by Alameda county from July 1, 1886, two fiscal years, amounts to $1,182,802 98 divided as follows:

"Statutory: salaries $ 77,887 35 or 15 per cent; bonds $146,341 05 or 11⅓ per cent.

"Schools: $407,480 63 or 30½ per cent. General $397,094 03 or 33⅓ per cent.

"The amount not paid under direct action of statute as follows: Schools by County Superintendent $407,480 63 or 54 per cent. General by Board of Supervisors, $397,094 03 or 46 per cent.

"Of the amount paid on account of schools there was paid on orders of: Board of Education Oakland $239,963-72; Board of Education Berkeley $20,-891 91; Board of Education Alameda $49,438 94; total $310,294 60. District Trustees $157,186 03.

"Thus $157,186 03 or 31 per cent of the entire school fund or an amount equal to 30 7-10 per cent of amount under control of the Board of Supervisors, is affected by the clause proposed to be amended.

"First—The law requires this amount $157,186 03, to be paid out on the order of the Board of Trustee of the several school districts. Passing over the legal question whether such an order can be made excepting at a meeting of the board duly convened and admitting the usage which accepts the signature of two trustees as sufficient, I have found during the period examined by me—January 1, 1887, to December 31, 1888—twenty-seven orders upon which requisitions were drawn which had the signature of only one trustee.

"Again, in some instances the trustee has signed by proxy, which is totally inadmissable—and such signature has been accepted and the requisitions issued.

"Second—The law requires that the month during which the services were rendered shall be given on all orders for salary. In some instances this has not been done, and yet requisitions have been drawn; notwithstanding the law says "nor shall any requisition for teachers salaries be drawn unless" the above provision is complied with.

"Third—The law requires that for payments other than for teachers' salaries, the orders shall be accompanied by an itemized bill showing the separate items and the price of each. This requirement, which is so rigidly enforced in all other departments of the county and the reason for which is so very plain, as affording the only means which citizens have of investigating public expenditures, is not as rigidly observed in the school department as it should be. In about three fourths of the orders for insurance nothing but the amount of the rate paid or the amount insured is given, and there is nothing by which any one could test whether the charge is just or not. Again orders (in one instance for $151 62 for what would require a long bill of items) have been paid without any bill of any kind being filed, and in other cases, notably the one for fuel, running through several months, with no other information than the mere words 'wood,' 'coal,' or 'fuel,' or some similar expression showing the class of articles furnished.

"Fourth—Requisitions have been drawn in favor of the assignees of parties without any indorsement of any kind transferring the title of the original payee. In some cases the order has been indorsed by proxy, without any attempt at showing any authority for such indorsement.

"Fifth—In one instance, Highland district, an order from the district of the same name in Contra Costa county was paid from the funds of Alameda county. This amount was refunded on January 22, 1889.

"Sixth—In some instances the body of the order is filled in with lead pencil; again, in some the amount for which the order is drawn is not written out, but simply given in figures. Both of these methods render alterations and raising of amounts very simple and easy.

"The first three irregularities are important, as they open the door for fraud if at any time we should be unfortunate enough to have a dishonest official in any district, and that they have been allowed to pass shows that additional safeguards should be placed around this whole matter. These requirements of the law are the only means by which the legality of any order can be tested. Under the rule observed by the Board of Supervisors and the Auditor of this county, at least 20 per cent, or $31,000, of the amount disbursed on orders of the district school trustees would have been rejected as irregular and under irregularity number 4 a equal amount would have been thrown out by any cautious banker.

"The last three irregularities are more important, as they open the door much wider, and under the present law neither the Treasurer nor Auditor has any means, during the course of current business, of investigating or going behind the requisition of the Superintendent for their own protection, while the county has no guarantee that the right persons have received the money or that it will not be called upon to pay the same a second time.

"There is, however, another phase of this matter, in which all six figure. Under the present ruling of the courts the County Treasurer is personally liable to the county in case of a fraudulent payment, regardless of whether the law allows him any knowledge or means of investigation.

"The object of this proposed amendment is to enable the Auditor and Treasurer to examine into and pass upon the regularity of the claim, leaving the original responsibility where it belongs, with the several Boards of Trustees.

"I would say here that a careful and thorough examination satisfied me that all the claims paid have been just claims, and the only point sought to be made is that the present law opens the door to fraud, and that experience shows that the only way to correct the trouble is to change the law and throw additional safeguards around the whole matter."

County Superintendent Fisher said that in most cases the persons to whom he had given warrant he personally knew were entitled to the same; that teachers coming into the city from the interior were nearly always in his office to the number of twenty and thirty a day, and as attendant upon the hurry with which he was obliged to transact business sometimes it was not to be wondered that mistakes would occur. In some cases he would draw orders which he knew were just but irregularly drawn. The Boards of School Trustees scattered throughout the county were very careless of making a proper showing of what the money should be paid for.

A resolution was then read and adopted approving the amendment and directing the District Attorney and the County School Superintendent to go to Sacramento and have the bill introduced in the Legislature and to urge its passage.

RESOLUTIONS.

The board then resolved three things: that the delinquent tax sale be held in the Tax Collector's office, that the bill of Henry Smith for blacksmithing at the County Infirmary, which was allowed for $164 27, be allowed for $190 27, the original amount, and that each Supervisor be required to report monthly to the board the names of all indigents allowed help and the amount allowed.

TRANSFER OF ROAD MONEY.

The following resolution was then read and unanimously adopted, viz.,

"WHEREAS, by an order of this board the several road districts of this county were reorganized to take effect on January 7, A. D. 1889; and whereas, the property subject to road tax was assessed in the old districts, and the money collected under said assessment has been apportioned to the funds of the old districts.

Now, therefore, in order to equitably adjust the revenue of the several road districts as now organized, be it

Mr. Bailey stated in regard to the petition for a public road in Murray township to run from Livermore to San Antonio valley, presented by William Mendenhall and others, which had been laid over at the request of Mr. Dusterberry in order that the new board might act upon it, that it would be better not to take immediate action, for the reason that Mr. Mendenhall had stated that the petitioners would in all probability withdraw the petition and present another for a different route.

THE TALMUD.

Rev. Dr. Vidaver's Lecture Upon That Book.

The Beauties of the Jewish Law From The Talmud.

The First Presentation of the Subject to the Public on This Coast—A Metaphorical Lecture.

Rabbi Vidaver is the first who has ever undertaken to present to the public on this coast any of the beauties of the Talmud. The Talmud, that great book of Jewish law, is nearly as old as the Bible. That was why Rev Dr. Vidaver lectured in the Synagogue, to tell some of the beauties of that book. And this was what he said:

In order to enter that beautiful garden called "The Talmud," to pick therein some fragrant and never fading flowers of which we may wreathe a precious garland to crown our lives, I shall begin as follows:

It was in the year 461 before the Christian era, during the reign of the fourth Persian King, Arthaxerxess the Long Handed, that Ezra, the great scribe, in company of a large number of coreligionists left Babylon and returned to the Holy Land for the purpose of ameliorating the spiritual condition of their brethren who had resided there since the time of Cyrus. History tells that Cyrus, Darius, and Arthaxerxess were favorably inclined toward the Hebrews; and the reason why was simply because those rulers were given to the worship of Urmazed, the god of light, and were devoted to doctrines, which infused with dislike for incarnated deities, which were also an abomination in the eyes of the Hebrews. Hence those rulers sympathized more with the Jewish people than with other idolatrous nations. Furthermore, the Persian kings, especially Darius, knew very well that the Hebrews, like themselves, repudiated the idea of offering human sacrifices which other nations, even the Greeks, practiced to a great extent. The religious affinity between the Persians and the Hebrews caused the rulers of the former to be graciously impressed with the latter. Ezra, who descended from the priestly line, and whose forefather Chilkiah discovered the fifth book of Moses in the Temple, was zealously religious, and occupied his mind only with the study of Holy Scriptures. He was considered by all his brethren in Babylon an authority on ecclesiastical subjects, and he succeeded in raising his people to a high standard of morality. As soon as he was made aware of the godlessness and degradation into which his brethren in Palestine had fallen, he could not rest until he, together with 1600 men, women and children of the best families of Babylon had repaired to the Holy land. Upon his arrival in Jerusalem he was received by his co-religionists with veneration and cordiality, for his fame as a great scribe preceded him. His first undertaking in that city was to cleanse the people of some impurities and to bring them upon the path which Holy Scripture had beaten for them. After having accomplished all this, he, with the aid of Nehemiah, formed a synod of 120 learned representatives who are yet known by the name "men of the great synagogue," and whose duty it was to guard and shield Scripture and to instruct the people in the tenets of Judaism and in the doctrines, laws and ceremonies which they deduced by inferences from Scripture, and which they received traditionally from Moses through the prophets. Those men were the first ones who began to lay the foundation of The Mishna, which became the groundwork of the grand and collossal structure called "The Talmud." That synod, however, did not flourish very long, for Simon the just, who lived 100 years after Ezra was one of the last men of the great synagogue. It was not before 150 years before the Christian era during the time of Hyrcan, one of the Maccabees, that the old synod was reorganized with some slight changes. It was then called "Sanhedrium" and consisted of 71 members, the wisest and most learned of the Pharises. Their office was to conduct and manage all civil and religious affairs of the people and to protect justice and peace. They also, like Ezra and the men of the great synagogue, discussed religious questions and propagated new theories, new doctrines and teachings. It seems, according to history, that the whole sect of Pharisees partook in religious discussions and biblical elucidations. The system of transmitting, orally, from one to the other, practices, customs, laws, rights, and of arguing religious points, was carried on by the Rabbis till 150 years after the Christian era, when Rabbi Jehudat, the patriarch, collected most of the arguments, theories, and decisions and compiled them into six volumes, which he called Mishna, which means "rex to scripture." Upon these books the beautiful edifice, "The Talmud," was reared. Since that time the Mishna became the only point of discussion. Partly by logical inferences and partly with the help of traditional matter, which was not yet included in the Mishna, all open questions were ventilated by the Rabbis in their respective colleges at Palestine and at Babylon. In the year 350 of the Christian era all arguments, teachings, and decisions of the Palestine Rabbis were collected and added to the Mishna and called the Jerusalem Talmud, and in the middle of the sixth century all discussions, disputations, and interpretations of the Babylon Rabbis were linked to the Mishna and called the Babylonian Talmud, which contains 2947 pages, and which for the vast treasure of science and learning which it enshrines never was and never will be duplicated.

But some you may raise the question. Why did the Rabbis of old exert their ingenuity to bring forth so many ethics, so many sophisms, so many maxims, so many new laws, new ceremonies, and prohibations. The question, however, can be very easily answered. It is an historical fact that at the time when Alexander of Macedonian had vanquished Asia, Greek ideas, Greek philosophy, Greek customs and habits weilded their influence upon the oriental nations. And the reason for their susceptibility to everything Grecian was their idol worship, which was similar to that of the Greeks. The Hebrews, however, although having been Greek subjects, were not absorbed by nor blended with the Greeks simply because their monotheistic belief, holy scripture, and the teachings of the God fearing Rabbis were the guiding stars of their lives. Also Greek philosophy could find us staunch adherers among the Jewish people, because a philosophy like that of the Greeks, which had no power in checking the people in their debauchery and licentiousness, and elevating them to a standard of morality—such a philosophy could by no means favorably impress the Hebrews, whom Holy Scripture has always taught to be a pure, virtuous, humane, just and godly people. And afterward, when the Romans conquered the Greeks, the former continued the practice of immorality and godlessness of the latter. They even retained the worship of the Greek idols with changed names. Now, having been surrounded by such wicked examples, witnessing all the time Roman and Greek corruption and degradation, the Hebrews were in danger of imitating their neighbors. You know very well that wicked examples are very contagious. You may be ever so innocent, ever so pure and spotless, if you associate with low characters, you will in time become contaminated. Our wise rabbis, therefore, in order to guard their people against Greek and Roman wickedness, introduced a great many new strict moral rules and prohibitions, instituted new laws, and heaped admonitions upon admonitions, exhortations upon exhortations, which were calculated to bind the people closer to their religion, and to render them insusceptible to the evil conduct of their neighbors. If you open the pages of history you will find that the three cardinal virtues, which have always been the main and most conspicious features in the character of Israel, namely, purity, humanity and charity—these three virtues were openly and wilfully violated by the Romans and Greeks. These half civilized nations removed the veil of shame from their faces, and went after the lusts of their hearts, and the immoral desires of their eyes. Incest and lewdness they practiced with impunity. Virtue, modesty and morality were to them things unknown. They depreciated the institution of marriage. We must blush when reading of the immorality which prevailed among them.

In the face of such a state of affairs the sages in Israel put the seal of holiness upon matrimony. "Every day, says one of the rabbis a heavenly voice announces the daughter of so and so should become the wife of so and so." "The Almighty," says another Rabbi, "is engaged in matching couples and uniting them in marriage." "He who is without a wife," says another Rabbi, "is without joy, without blessing, without goodness." Another one says, "He who is without a wife is without peace." "He who loves his wife like himself and honors her more than himself, and he who directs his sons and daughters in the right path and gives them into marriage at proper ages, concerning such a man scripture says 'And thou shalt know that thy tabernacle is in peace, and thou shalt visit thy habitation and shalt not sin.'"

Now, I ask you, are not such wise sayings like beautiful flowers, rejoicing the hearts and charming the eyes of those who gather them?

The second cardinal principle of humanity was shamefully abused by the Greeks, and more so by the Romans. They were heartless and barbarous to their own children. At Sparta a law was enacted that parents should have the permission of destroying their offspring. And in the whole Roman empire it was lawful for parents to do away with bad looking children. And how cruelly and inhumanly did they deal with their servants. The servant was looked upon by them as an instrument which the master could apply to whatever service he pleased. They were not allowed to kill a servant, but to beat him mercilessly and to mutilate him. Whatever the servant possessed belonged to his master. Cato originated the idea that a servant is nothing but an animal, but since he is endowed with sense he is responsible to his master for all his deeds and actions. Innumerable are the atrocities which those Romans and Greeks perpetrated on the unfortunate slaves.

In order to counteract the effects of such a barbarism our sages depict in glowing terms the sin of attempting to decrease the population, as was manifested by the Romans toward their own children. He who refrains from fulfilling the commandment: "Be fruitful, etc.," may be looked upon as shedding innocent blood," one Rabbi says. "Who is practicing righteousness all the time?" asks a Rabbi; "only he who supports his sons and daughters." "Jerusalem was a great large city because its inhabitants married young in order to increase the population." And speaking of servants, the sages say that a servant should be treated by his master like his own brother, he should not be compelled to do any degrading and mean work, nor should he be fed on different food than that which his master eats. "No man should say, in order that my servant should not get accustomed to idleness, I will let do some work, although I do not need it at all." Such is the treatment which a Hebrew servant should receive at the hands of his master, according to the teachings of our Talmudical rabbis. And even the treatment which our sages conferred on heathen servants betrayed nothing but humanity. As soon as a heathen sold himself as a servant to a Hebrew, he had to live up to the same religious and moral laws which are binding on every woman of Israel. The master was not permitted to force him to embrace Judaism, but had to wait twelve months, and if the servant yet persisted in idolatry, he could sell him to a non-Israelite. Pagan servants generally received in Hebrew houses fine educations, they became moral and virtuous men and women. Tobi, the servant of Rabbi Gamliel, is spoken of in the Talmud as a noble character.

Now, my friends, are not such teachings of humanity like beautiful roses which always have adorned our people's lives?

I am now at the third cardinal principle of charity which the Greeks, and more especially the Romans, neglected and disregarded. Seneca says: "Most of the Romans give charity with an unwilling heart; and being cautious not to touch the beggar, they throw their small contributions before his feet." To meet a poor men when leaving the house they considered bad luck. Quintilion said: "I do not see how a man can lower himself so as to see a beggar before him and not kick him away like a carcass." Another wise Roman used to say: "I do not see why we should render any assistance to the poor; it only prolongs their miserable life."

Can we doubt for a moment that in the presence of such brutal laws and immoral habits, it was absolutely necessary that the teachings and principles of mercy and humanity which holy scripture promulgates should be imparted to our people in such a way as to render them insusceptible to the wicked examples of their neighbors. The Rabbis therefore sometimes twisted some biblical passage in order to derive from them lessons of humanity. One of the Rabbis says "Charity is greater than all scriptural commandments." "Charity," says another, "may avert from men an evil decree, save him from death, hasten the advent of Messiah and increase peace." He who abandons the great virtue of charity is to be looked upon as an idol-worshipper. One of the Roman Generals, Jarus Rufus, asked Rabbi Akiba: "If your God loveth the poor why does he not support them?" "Because," answered the Rabbi, "the Almighty wants us to merit his grace by charity." "It seems to me," rejoined the General, "by supporting the poor you incur his displeasure, for, if a king is angry at his servant and puts him in prison and prohibits all from feeding him, would not all who gives bread to that prisoner deserve to be punished for disobedience? Does not scripture say that your people are God's servants?" "But," said the Rabbi, "if a king is angry at his son and throws him into prison and deprives him of his meals, would he not in time be pleased to hear that some one has had compassion upon the prince and has fed him clandestinely? Scripture says that we are God's children, hence by supporting the poor we please the Almighty. Thus you will admit when I say that the Talmud which contains such beautiful flowers as those which I have exhibited to you is worthy of being highly appreciated by all lovers of truth."

A quiet wedding took place last Tuesday afternoon at the residence of J. B. Lanktree, corner of Pacific avenue and Wood street, Alameda, between T. O. Abbott, a prominent young attorney of Tacoma, Wash., and Miss Frances T. Cooper, Mrs. Lanktree's sister. The ceremony was performed by Justice J. E. Sharpstein of the Supreme Court. The bride, a young lady formerly from Idaho, has spent the last two years with her sister in Alameda. The young couple left on the Oregon train Tuesday evening for Tacoma, Wash., where they will reside in the future.

IN MASQUE AND DOMINO.

The twenty-second anniversary of the Turn Verein was celebrated in this city on Saturday evening by a grand masquerade ball, given at Germania Hall by that society. The affair was in every sense a success, and the costumes worn showed both taste and originality in selection. There was Bismarck in all his power and glory, and there was also his victim, the Samoan king, in primitive dress and war paint. Hamlet and Faust stepped, true as life, out of the sixteenth century onto the boards of the present. Mrs. Stowe's inimitable creation, Topsy, was present and, as ever, up to mischief. The Polish lady, danced and passed, in common language, the compliments of the evening with the Spanish prince. The page and the chamberlain walked arm in arm, and His Majesty Louis XIV shook hands with Mike, a hodcarrier. And besides, there were a number of the quaint and curious costumes of the middle ages, and some odd conceptions of those of the present. Mercy and charity visited the company and Quakeresses in sombre gowns contrasted with the gay colors in the hall. The antique and grotesque the dull and gay, mingled charmingly, and the wearers of the costumes danced and played merrily about the floor until the Sunday morning trains had begun to make their regular trips.

Besides the regular dance, the programme embraced an amusing farce, "Company A, en route for Washington," in which the preliminary drill and military tactics of that organization were reproduced by a number of the members of the Verein in ludicrous make up, with false faces toward their backs and wigs covering and concealing their features.

These appeared in costume:

Fancy dress, Miss P. Wanger; Samoan sailor, Smith Bankhead; Kate Castleton, Annie Wanger; tramp, L. Barkman; chambermaid, Miss H. E. Benan; Bismarck, the war-horse, J. BLIND WARDS.

Institutions Provided By the State For Their Care.

A Visit of the Assembly Committee to the Deaf and Dumb, and Blind Asylums.

The Assembly Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds visited the Institution of the Deaf and Dumb, and the Blind at Berkeley and the Home for the Adult Blind at Berkeley yesterday. It had also been the intention to visit the State University, but that visit was postponed and will be made at some future time. The members of the committee who were present were: John Stonde, chairman; D. S. Regan, J. A. Mullaney, J. Davis, J. C. Campbell, Philo Hersey, and Clark E. Farrell.

At the asylum the committeemen were received by Warren Wilkinson, the superintendent, under whose guidance an examination of the buildings and grounds was made.

The first building visited was the educational department, a splendidly built structure of brick and granite. The pupils, who are instructed in all the branches included in a common school education, nearly all show remarkable aptitude in acquiring knowledge. Some illustrations of the brightness of the little ones were afforded by the work of two little girls and two little boys in the primary grade, who were called in by Mr. Wilkinson and performed exercises, such as expressing ideas and writing brief compositions upon the blackboard.

The girls' department was next visited. This is a handsome brick structure, admirably kept, in which the pupils are well lodged.

Attached to the institution is a cooking school, which was also visited. There the girls are instructed in the mysteries of the art which makes a dish beautiful to the eye and grateful to the palate out of an old soupbone.

The kitchen is one to delight the heart of a housewife. It is large and roomy, has a splendid range, and is warranted ratproof by the tiling on the floor and wainscoting. The cook has a bill of fare, including only good and substantial food. The pupils get three meals a day, except on Sundays, when they have breakfast between 8 and 9 o'clock, a light luncheon of sandwiches, and a dinner at 4 P. M.

The laundry is in good condition and is well supplied with necessary apparatus. In the workshops the boys are taught modeling in wood and do good work. There is also a printing establishment where a small and very creditable sheet, the Weekly News, is issued by the inmates. In the room of the art class, which is under the direction of Theophiles d'Estrella, a graduate of the institution, many clever lots of work were seen. The pupils draw from casts and selected subjects, and do some modeling. Some excellent work done by a former pupil named Tilden, who is now studying art in Europe, is on exhibition.

The special appropriations asked for the benefit of this institution amount to $30,000, which includes $15,000 for the completion of the educational building, and other money necessary for the erection of a new building, as the present quarters are already crowded. There are in the institution about 160 inmates, of whom about seventy are girls.

The committee next visited the Home for the Adult Blind in Oakland, where there are fifty-three inmates, seven of whom are women. The home is under the direction of Superintendent Sanders, a blind man. The broom factory attached to the home is claimed to be too small, the men being required to work in galleries. The building is also entirely of wood, and being filled with brooms and loose corn, the danger of fire is greatly increased. Superintendent Sanders has asked for an appropriation to build an addition to the factory, but the committee favored making a large appropriation and erecting a brick building. The superintendent also wants larger quarters to accommodate the present inmates, who are crowded.

Assemblyman Regan suggested, and the other members indorsed it, that the home should have a revolving fund for the purchase of corn, and that all brooms used in State institutions should be bought there. The home endeavors to be self sustaining. The committee will recommend everything asked for the Home of the Adult Blind.

The Senate Committee on Public Buildings, which includes Senator W. E. Dargie of Oakland, also spent yesterday in visiting the various State institutions in this city and Berkeley.

(Or the Liquor Habit), Positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. For sale by all druggists in Oakland. Trade supplied by J. R. Nein.

Your's a nitty little waiter
Oh, Fraulein!
To my wants you always cater,
When I dine;
And you have no irritating
Way of keeping people waiting,
And your smile is captivating,
I opine.

You are always dressed so nicely,
Oh, Fraulein!
All my feelings so precisely
You divine;
That from soup to tutti-frutti
You're acquainted with your duty,
And utility with beauty
You combine.

You're skilled in fancy cooking,
Oh, Fraulein!
You're the maid for whom I'm looking
For my shrine.
Tho' I have not wealth nor title,
Prithee, list to my recital;
Give my fond love some requital,
Oh, be mine!

So, you actually are laughing
And decline?
And my sentiments you're chaffing,
And say "Nein!"
At my professed love you laugh, eh?
What! You are the better half, eh?
Of the man who keeps this cafe?
Oh, Fraulein!

THE NEWS.

Bismarck's Communication on Samoa.

The Vesuvius Will Not Be Sold to Any Foreigner.

The Next British Minister at Washington.

The Murder of the Crown Prince Rudolph.

Special to the Oakland Tribune by California Associated Press.

LONDON, February 4.—A collision occurred last night off Dungeness between the British ship Killochan and the steamer Nereid. Both vessels sank in a very short time, and twenty-four persons were drowned, including Captain Munson of the Killochan. Nine members of the crew were rescued, one of whom afterwards died. The weather was clear when the collision occurred.

All the passengers of the steamship Remus are supposed to have been drowned.

HOW DID RUDOLPH DIE?

The Murder Theory Is Very Generally Believed.

LONDON, February 4.—While there are current many stories about Prince Rudolph's death, many being undoubtedly sensational and based on rumors and conjecture. The impression grows stronger that in some way Rudolph was killed by some other than his own hand. It is further argued that if the Prince had really committed suicide, that would scarcely constitute a sufficient reason for the strong and persistent endeavor which was made on all hands to conceal the manner of his death until the concealment of the fact that he died of violence was no longer possible. Another argument against the suicide theory is that no bullet has thus far been found in his head or in the bedroom, so that the idea that a duel or murder occurred outside the palace walls has received additional strength. The public mind is far from satisfied.

VIENNA, February 4.—The body of Crown Prince Rudolph was removed last night to the parish church, and a brief preliminary service occurred. The remains lie on a gold cloth. Prince Hohenlohe and Count Hunyadi accompanied the remains to the chapel. The choir sang sacred psalms. The body will lie in a vault until a sarcophagus of marble is built.

No Foreign Government Will Be Allowed to Buy Her.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—The Navy Department officials indignantly deny that any foreign government has any chance to secure the new dynamite cruiser Vesuvius. They say that so far as finished it has proved acceptable to the Government, and all that now remains is for the guns to stand the test and they are confident they will. The Vesuvius is looked upon as a wonder by the officials and any attempt by foreign governments to get it will be resisted.

Sing will be arraigned in the Police Court to-morrow.

The Lady and the Tiger.

"The baby is my baby of the morn,
Who wound its arms about my neck and kissed
My mouth with innocent lips! See! I will go
And take my friend forth from the tiger's mouth,
If God shall please. And if he shall not please,
Why, then a singing girl the brute will eat.
And not that tender one, born to live pure!"
So, ere a hand could stay her, she had drawn
The cord tight between her knees, and walked,
With those kind eyes fixed hard upon the beast,
Straight to the spot—had stooped—had gathered close
The silent child against that breast which beat
Fearless of fear—had reached the steps again,
Steadfastly eyeing always those fierce eyes
That glared and sparkled, blazing rage and dread;
Her face always full turned to that fell face
Cushioned upon spread paws, yet stirring not;
For, sirs, as God is God, the love of it,
The greatness of it and the suddenness—
Which, as I do perceive, hold now your minds—
Lay on that snarling, britting beast of blood,
A spell and wonder which it could not burst
For all the savage panting of its strength:
And she had gained the porch, the outer steps,
Ere, with a roar as when the thunder cracks
A black bound cloud, mad to be free and safe
From the sweet terror of those mastering eyes,
The tigress bounded through the air—a flash
Of living lightning—passed the porch, one claw
Striking the girl, tearing her shot down.
But oh! a skin wound only! for the beast
Sought quick escape; and save the claw to us
Clasping the babe, red with her mother blood:
And so the mother took her infant back,
A gift from the Bazar girl.
Subtle—Guilbadian—
As we may judge from her averted head—
Hardly believes you!
Palaze—Well! She doubts herself
If she doubts that bold deed. Look, sirs, I turn
The chief from her shoulder! there's the scar!
The tigress stamped upon it—for 'twas she!

Unwarranted Arrests.

When the case of little Bertie Gentry, accused of petty larceny, was to-day called in the Police Court the Assistant District Attorney announced that Mr. Sovereign, who had caused the boy's arrest, did not desire to prosecute him, and would file no complaint in the case. At this Judge Henshaw made some forcible remarks. The little boy, who was too young to know the nature of his crime, got on a tricycle belonging to Sovereign's child and rode up street on it, but was caught before he had gone over a block. When arrested he said he was only going to take a little ride, but citizen Sovereign accused him of petty larceny and the boy was locked up. His Honor remarked that too much of this kind of business was going on and that if it occurred much more he would deal severely with the accuser who preferred charges against people for such trivial offenses.
